About Me

After typing down my first line of code at the age of eleven, my eyes were instantly opened to the vast world of programming. I then decided that I would do programming as long as I was able to.

I was taught at a young age to have godly characters. I learned that being smart wouldn't get me anywhere unless I was diligent, honest, humble, patient, and respectful.

Organizing time and work comes very natural to me. Programming provides me with the ability to express my imagination and creativity. I am very excited and look forward to putting what I have learned into building real applications.

I know I am young but I hope there is one company out there that can truly see my passion and give me the chance to contribute and shine.
